22,000,000 Men Are Available From Russia

London, Sept. 15.—Russia is to settle the eastern question by eliminating Turkey and Bulgaria entirely from the war obtaining for the use of Russian troops either the Bulgarian black sea port of Varna or Constantinople itself and using it as a base for the overthrow of Germany and Austria.

A strong new Russian army is taking the field with this special mission as the correspondent of the Morning Post at Petrograd.

When the army has gained control these ports as a base of supply, Russia will be able to strike the Tientsin with 20 per cent more power, he says.

"In spite of the present co-operation of all the allies, which amounts practically to a pooling of all the resources," says the correspondent, "Russia has had difficulty in getting supplies through the narrow ports of Archangel and Vladivostok. What has been accomplished in this line, however, has been marvelous."

"The population of Archangel which two years ago was under 20,000 is now six times that, while other townships of the same region now exist with a population of 20,000 where before there was none."

"Russia's new army for the east made no drain whatever upon her strength. If Russia had full port and base facilities, she could put 22,000,000 men into the field. For a time she was unable to arm and equip all the millions she wanted to the colors, but this difficulty has disappeared and Russia will be able to use all her strength."

"It is fully realized that Germany's weak point when opposed to Russia is her comparative shortage of men. While Russia can comfortably draw whole armies at frequent periods, the Germans are hard pressed to maintain sufficient men to defend their fronts."

"While this is disastrous for the Germans, Russia can spare of her millions, tens of thousands of splendid soldiers for service in France and at Saloniki."

Punch Boards Under Ban

The latest order received by the postal police of Western Canada is to the effect that punch boards are the latest gambling device to fall under the eagle eye of returners.

The new order reads: "In all cases the police will institute proceedings against parties operating punch boards (i.e., the men having them set up and exposed for operation in their stores, shops or houses) in their respective districts. Refer to Sec. 236, C.C.S. Sub. Sec. 60. These cases are indictable offences and the police will be in the form of a preliminary hearing."

In the case of parties who actually play these boards (i.e., punch the board for the purpose of obtaining a prize, paragraph 2 of sub. sec. 236 will apply, insofar that a person lays a claim to obtain a prize each time he purchases the right to punch. These you will note are summary cases, that can be disposed of by one justice of the peace. Inquire for your guidance the following from Crankehall.

Note (Sec. 236 Letter) "A lottery is giving or distributing of prizes by some mode or contrivance depending upon chance, without the use of skill; in other words, there must in order to constitute a lottery be some contrivance or device for obtaining money (value) by chance."

The Quebec Bridge

The bridge was built primarily to carry the National Transcontinental railway between the Atlantic and the Pacific, but the following railways also will use it: The Canadian Pacific railway, the Quebec Central, the Grand Trunk, the Intercolonial, the Quebec and Lake St. Johns, the Canadian Northern, and the Bellevue and Hudson.

The dimensions of the bridge are: Length from shore to shore, 2,329 feet. Width, between anchor buttresses, 1,800 feet.

Length of central span, 640 feet. Height of central span above river, 160 feet.

Number of railway tracks carried, two; street car tracks, two roads.

The bridge has a channel span of 10 feet longer than the Forth bridge, which until now had been the world's record in this respect. The steel used in this bridge weighed 180,000,000 pounds, and cost $17,000,000, the main pier masonry costing $4,000,000.

The Big War Loan

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—The minister of finance today launched to the press the following announcement:

"The second Canadian war loan is now being offered for public subscription. While the government is aware that Canadian patriotic sentiment alone could be depended upon to ensure success, strict regard has been had, in fixing the terms of the issue, to prevailing financial conditions with the object of making the offering attractive from the purely investment standpoint. The government is confident that this, the second loan for the purpose of raising funds for Canada's war expenditures, will meet with the same loyal and generous response which made the first war loan so strikingly successful."

A Few Pointers

The Housewives' League of Chicago, in a circular letter sent out to the housewives of the city, includes the following pertinent questions:

"Are you the thoughtful housewife who makes out a systematic market list for the day's requirements?"

"Are you the thoughtless housewife who makes out her provisions little by little every few hours during the day?"

"Stop! Think what it means to the grocer to fill three or four different orders a day from one and the same customer!"

"Stop! Think of the extra bookkeeping necessitated in the office!"

"Stop! Think how many unnecessary trips the delivery boy is obliged to make by carrying heavily on his back!"

"Stop! Think of the avoidable wear and tear on the wagon!"

"Stop! Think of the weary tired trot of the horse over the asphalt ground!"

"Systematic once a day ordering saves your time, your money, your peace of mind, the clerk, the bookkeeper, the delivery man, the horse, the wagon."

Kindness and consideration, on your part, will help the grocer to help you and be factors in reducing the high cost of living."

Commit This to Memory

Thomas McKee once wrote a prophecy that he was committing to memory. Among other things he said:

"Fresh out that sixty minutes makes an hour, 16 ounces one pound and 100 cents one dollar."

"Help me to live so that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience, without again under my pillow and unthought by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain."

"Grant, I beseech Thee, that I may earn my next ticket on the square and in doing thereof I may not tickle myself where it does not belong."

"Blead me to the jungle of tainted money and the mire of vulgar ambition."

"Deny me to the faults of the other fellow, but revert to me my own."

"Guide me so that each night when I look across the dinner table my wife who has been a blessing to me, I will have nothing to conceal."

"Keep me young enough to laugh with my children and to love myself in their play."

"And then, when comes the smell of flowers and the tread of the soft steps, and the crumpling of the hearer's wheels in the gravel out in front of my place, make the greatest shout and the epiphany simple."

"Here Lies A Man."

What's in a Name

The Dunn family of world fame bids fair to lose its renown by the dissipation of the Hell family in the town of Farrell, built by the United States Steel corporation. Members of the Hell family are not adverse to using their name in a business way.

The head of the family, Conrad Hell, an ice cream manufacturer, has signed the "Go to Hell or Ice Cream" scattered throughout the city. Another sign reads, "Ice Cream from Hell is guaranteed pure and cooling."

Still another bears the inscription, "Have you been to Hell? It's the coolest place in town." When a stranger asked the woman who is believed by a big bill board reading, "Hell is here don't miss the place." A block farther down the street this sign is encountered: "You find every body there on a hot day, Hell is always open." The big sign which, however, attracts more attention is in front of Hell's place of business. It represents a young couple entering ice cream and the young woman saying to her escort, "Hell for mine, always."—Michigan Tradesman.

Good Farm Machinery

Arguments Show Direct Benefits
From Use of Improved
Machines

The following ten arguments show the effects resulting from the use of improved farm machinery:

1. The reduction of human labor by increasing the number of horses, one man being able to do more with a large machine using more horses than was possible years ago when smaller machinery was used and hand labor resorted to.
2. Reducing cost of production. By reducing the labor and permitting the handling of larger areas and more products in the same time resulted in the lower cost per unit production.
3. Increases the acreage effective area of man.
4. Decreases number of farm laborers. This factor is very important in that labor is becoming more scarce every year, is higher priced, and the problem of caring for those laborers is also an important consideration to the average farmer's wife.
5. Decreases the producing element.
6. Increases total crop production by increasing the acreage per farmer.
7. Decreases acre production. The land that the greatest decrease in production is in the states where machinery is used mostly. This factor is not very important as it seems to hold true mostly in the states where diversified farming is not practiced, but the single crop system is followed, as for instance, in the wheat sections of the Northwest.
8. Delays divisions into small farms until decrease in crop production being a factor in cost production.
9. Increases the cost of production. The principle of supplying demand will regulate this. The principle of what the traffic will bear cannot be carried on in the agricultural production.
10. Dispenses with hard labor.

The certainty of getting work done by concentrating the operations during the period when the most favorable conditions prevail. This last factor is by no means the least important. It is the states where the advantage of a farmer to do as much of his work as possible when the conditions are just what he needs.

Stored Up Energy

Everybody needs it—stored for emergency in a well-developed, well-preserved, well-nourished, body and brain.

Grape-Nuts food stands preeminent as a builder of this kind of energy. It is made of the entire nutritive content of whole wheat and barley. Two of the richest sources of food strength.

Grape-Nuts also includes the vital mineral elements of the grain, so much important in these days of investigation of real food values.

Crisp, ready to eat, easy to digest, wonderfully nourishing and delicious.

A Channel Tunnel

How it Would Have Helped to Win the War

The great French railway company which carried the English troops from Calais and Boulogne to Paris, and which has been in the past one of the most prosperous in the world, has just issued its annual report, and after comparing all the conditions at the end of the war, they say that England, considering the fact that every kind will be without any doubt immensely increased. There is every reason to hope for a profitable reconstruction of the channel tunnel. The work in progress has always been undeniably the absolute need of it from every point of view.

The view taken by the directors of the French railway seems to express the views of the vast bulk of the people of this country at the present time. "You need on every hand the channel tunnel, how it would have helped us a few of the years in which the tunnel would have aided us in the war may be usefully stated."

The expeditionary army at the outbreak of war would have been transported in the shortest possible time, and rapidly and thus possibly saved the trains of troops and guns would have run direct from Antwerp to the strategic position of Flanders. Supposing the army had by this means arrived at Mons only a week before the German attack, the battle might have been the effect of the battle which was fought there.

Then, later, when we understood the defence of the Ypres line, which has gradually been lost, we should have had the advantage of a direct line of communication and munitions right to the positions where they were needed in the battle which was fought there. The Germans have taught us how important it is to have a direct line of communication, and they have shown us how to use it.

France Honors Soldier

Pays Tribute to the First Frenchman to Die in War

France paused August 2, 1916, to tribute to the memory of Corporal Julien-Auguste Peugeot, the first Frenchman killed in the present war. It was at Jonchery on the upper Rhine at 10 o'clock on August 2, 1914, about 24 hours before the war broke out between Germany and France, that Peugeot was shot to death by Lieutenant Mayer, the head of a German patrol squad.

A national subscription is being collected under the patronage of the minister of war and the minister of public instruction for the erection of a monument to Corporal Julien-Auguste Peugeot. It is proposed that the name and brass of Peugeot be placed on the history as have those of Marshal de Lognon, the first victim of the war of 1870, who was killed at Metz.

Peugeot, 21, was a corporal in the 6th Company, of the 48th Regiment of Infantry. Early in August he was stationed at Jonchery, 12 kilometers from Delle and 12 kilometers from the German frontier.

On the morning of August 2, he had just finished placing a sentry and returned to the house of A. M. Daucourt, when the latter's little daughter came running in crying, "The Prussians! The Prussians!" Corporal Peugeot, who was on duty, found himself facing a mounted German patrol of six men. He was killed by the bullet of Lieutenant Mayer, the head of a German patrol squad.

Peugeot gave the order to halt, to which the Prussians replied with revolver and firing three shots into the body of the Corporal. The latter fell to his knees, discharging his gun before he could take aim.

At this time, a few of Peugeot's men had rushed up, one of whom, Corporal Morsier, was killed by Mayer with two shots from his rifle. In the light that followed, Peugeot fell to his knees, discharging his gun before he could take aim.

One of the members of a committee of inquiry in the Rhine in a certain penitentiary found himself in conversation with one of the convicts. The latter was disguised by a confidant, and thus unburdened himself.

"It is a terrible thing to be known to tolerate instead of a man and to feel that all my life I shall be an object of suspicion among the police," said the visitor, concludingly.

"The same thing happens to people who own automobiles."

Looking Into the Sky

Physical Comfort Combined With the Enjoyment of the Beautiful and Mysterious

It is pleasant to lie on the earth and look at the sky. The dreamer who has laid on the banks of the river where you caught no fish and where you watched the sky and the water blue through the leaves and where above you are pleasant even when the sun is shining. Sometimes the leaves above you could hear the faintest whispering of the wind. Sometimes the leaves were still and you reached out your hand to touch them from behind each one. You believed in fairies then—at least you believed in them a little—but you were beginning to dream of things beyond these more real and more mysterious, and it was when you looked into the sky through the leaves that you best understood your dream.

And so it is pleasant even now to lie on the earth and look at the sky. It is a primitive sort of pleasure, but in the sense of physical comfort and calm contentment it is a joy of the beautiful and the mysterious. It is a joy of the joy of enjoyment than that—The Indianapolis News.

"It's a Great Shame"

One of the ladies of the Post Office Department recently approached the head of her branch and asked to see a few pages from the "Times." It was, Mr. Smith, that the Department publishes a book in which all the names of the persons who are inclined to reply that only one person is shown, was shown, was shown. Smith told the lady that there was such a book published for official purposes, but that there was no occasion for distress as the book was confidential. "I don't care," she burst out, "It's very wrong, and I'm very angry; it ought not to be allowed; it's a great shame," and so on. Eventually, however, she calmed down and said, "Well, of course, I know you can't help it, Mr. Smith, and I am sure you will tell me how old Miss So-and-so is!"—St. Martin's In Grand Magazine.

In An Enemy Trench

What life in an enemy trench is like may be gleaned from the personal description of a Tommy's brief letter to his family. "The trench was eight or nine other Englishmen, and I was the only one in front; right in the mouth of the dug-out, where I could see the trench, where a lot of British soldiers, smoking cigarettes and talking, were sitting by the fire. The British officers came along. I knew that they were sitting by the fire. The British officers came along. I knew that they were sitting by the fire. The British officers came along. ## They Were the Same Teeth

Amongst some recruits waiting to be passed by the doctor for a certain battalion was a miner from a local colliery, a fine strapping youth. After a good many had been examined it came to Da's turn, and everyone present thought him a likely recruit. The doctor, after looking at Da's teeth, remarked sadly:

"I'm sorry, my lad, I cannot pass you; your teeth are too bad." "Well, if this isn't a pity," replied Da. "You passed the same teeth yesterday. I was in the line, and you both borrowed them." — Western Mail, Cardiff.
